The first St Chad's Church in Fullarton was built in 1920 as a daughter church of the parish of Unley. St Chad's grew and eventually became an independent parish in 1934 extending the original church building over time. Further growth prompted a new church building to be built in 1957, with the original church becoming the parish hall. Fire destroyed the church on Palm Sunday 8th April 1990. The decision to rebuild in faith was made and work began on the new church in May 1992. Some records were destroyed in the fire.
